DIRECTORY OF RESOURCES FOR DEAF AND HARD OF HEARING SERVICES

INTRODUCTION

The Office of Deaf Access (ODA) was created in 1980 to administer the state's Deaf Access Program (DAP) which ensures that state-operated public programs address the communication needs of people who are deaf, deaf-blind, hard of hearing and late-deafened. In keeping with this mission, the ODA has created this directory to provide information and referral resources which serve the deaf and hard of hearing communities.

This directory is intended to be used as a guide for individuals who are deaf, hard of hearing, deaf-blind and late deafened, as well as by parents, advocates, state agencies, educators, service providers or anyone who has an interest in hearing loss. It provides contact information for programs and services within California and the United States. Within the directory, you will find contact information and many website links to various public and private entities.

If you have any comments, additions, omissions, changes or corrections, please notify our office immediately so that we may keep our website updated and current. Any questions or comments should be directed to:

California Department of Social Services Office of Deaf Access

744 P Street, MS 8-16-91

Sacramento, CA 95814

(916) 653-8320 (Voice)

(916) 653-7651 (TTY)

(916) 653-4001 (Fax)

Website: www.cdss.ca.gov/cdssweb/PG145.htm

E-mail: deaf.access@dss.ca.gov

A complete evaluation of the resources in this directory has not been executed and the inclusion in this directory does not necessarily imply endorsement of the agency or services by the Office of Deaf Access (ODA) or the California Department of Social Services. The exclusion of any agency or organization is not intentional. Any reproduction of this directory will acknowledge ODA as the resource.

ADVOCACY RESOURCES

ADVOCACY COUNCIL FOR ABUSED DEAF CHILDREN (ACADC) c/o Five Acres (refer to the “Counseling and Rehabilitation Services” section) Five Acres - The Boys' and Girls' Aid Society of Los Angeles County

760 West Mountain View Street

Altadena, CA 91001

E-mail: aapdmemberservices@earthlink.net

The AAPD is the largest national, nonprofit, cross-disability, member organization in the United States. This organization is dedicated to ensuring economic self-sufficiency and political empowerment for the more than 50 million Americans with disabilities. AAPD works in coalition with other disability organizations for the full implementation and enforcement of disability nondiscrimination laws, particularly the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990 and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

ADA INTERAGENCY TASKFORCE

Website: <http://www.dor.ca.gov/DisabilityAccessInfo/Index.html>

In order to share and coordinate information about disability access issues among key state departments, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) Interagency Taskforce (TF) was created in October of 2000. Its charge was to make recommendations on the allocation of one-time funds to increase architectural accessibility in state owned buildings and to develop a plan to identify any unmet access needs and recommend methods for meeting such needs. In addition to this website, the ADA TF has developed a series of bulletins addressing a variety of access issues, particularly for state government in California.

CALIFORNIA DISABILITY ACCESS INFORMATION WEBSITE

Website: <http://www.dor.ca.gov/DisabilityAccessInfo/>

The purpose of this site is to provide information and links on the major laws, regulations and areas of interest regarding disability rights and access for Californians with disabilities and other interested persons. You will find references to laws, resources for services and referrals to organizations that can help with access concerns.

This handbook discusses both California and federal laws that protect the rights of individuals with disabilities. California and federal law should be examined together to get a complete picture of the law on a particular topic. In some areas, California law provides more legal protection or is more comprehensive; in other areas, federal law is more helpful. At the end of the handbook, there is a Directory of Services that lists the type of complaint or lawsuit to be filed and the appropriate agency at which to file that complaint.

LET THEM HEAR FOUNDATION

Insurance Advocacy Program

1900 University Avenue, Suite 101
East Palo Alto, CA 94303

This nationwide insurance advocacy program assists people in appealing denial of services, free of charge. Appeal support is provided for: cochlear implants (single or bilateral), bone-anchored hearing aid implantation, conventional hearing aids, balance disorders, and other hearing-related surgeries.

ASSISTANCE DOGS: GUIDE, SIGNAL AND SERVICE DOGS

Assistance animals are individually trained to perform tasks for people with disabilities, such as: guiding people who are blind (guide dogs), alerting people who are deaf (signal dogs) and alerting people who have seizures, etc. (service dogs). Under the Americans with Disabilities Act, businesses and organizations that serve the public must allow people with disabilities to bring their assistance animals into all areas of public facilities. Businesses may ask if the animal is an assistance animal or what task it performs, but cannot require special identification cards for the animal or ask about the person's disability. Listed below are a number of schools and organizations that may help in locating appropriately trained assistance dogs.

ASSISTIVE TECHNOLOGY

Hearing loss may interfere with daily communication on many occasions. A hearing aid may be of benefit to certain people, but some situations may still present a problem which could require additional assistive technology. It might be difficult listening in a noisy restaurant or in a business meeting where the speaker is at a distance from the listener. The telephone can present a special problem where even a hearing aid may not be of any help. Doorbells or safety alarms with flashing lights or strobe lights are other assistive devices which can be particularly helpful. There are many assistive communication devices available for persons with hearing loss and a primary resource for assistive technology information is ATNetwork. The contact information for this organization and others are listed below.

CAPTIONING SERVICES

Communication Access Realtime Translation (CART) converts the spoken word into instant text. This service is generally for hard of hearing persons, not familiar with American Sign Language (ASL), that need to translate spoken words into printed English in a realtime format. In classrooms, at performances, for seminars or corporate presentations, this simultaneous text can be shown on any of four state-of-the-art display devices: laptop screen, television screen, light emitting device (LCD) projection screen or liquid crystal display (LED) message display signs. These display options offer the ultimate in flexibility, from a laptop for a single student to a large LED display sign for thousands at a live performance. Some service providers also have the capability to provide services from an off-site location. A qualified captioner should possess either a:

- State of California Certified Shorthand Reporter (CSR) certificate, or
- National Court Reporters Association Professional Reporter Certificate, or
- Certificate of Merit

The Association of Regional Center Agencies (ARCA) represents 21 regional centers in California that provide services to more than 200,000 Californians with developmental disabilities. Regional centers are non-profit organizations that contract with the state Department of Developmental Services for provision of services such as information and referral, assessment and diagnosis, placement and monitoring of out of home care, training of individuals and families and many other services. The term developmental disability refers to a severe and chronic disability that is attributable to a mental or physical impairment. The disability must begin before the 18th birthday and be expected to continue indefinitely and present a substantial disability. If a child with hearing loss also has an accompanying developmental disability, this child would qualify for these services.

Support for Families of Children with Disabilities (SFCD) is a parent-run, San Francisco-based, nonprofit organization founded in 1982 that supports families of children with any type of disability or special health care need to ensure that these families have the knowledge and assistance they need to make informed choices that support their child's health, education and development. This organization provides peer support to families, as well as, information and education to families, professionals and the community at large. The deaf and hard of hearing support group, which meets once per month, is a collaborative effort between SFCD and the University of California at San Francisco's (UCSF) Center on Deafness.

COMMUNICATION ACCESS

Generally speaking, one-on-one communication between persons who are deaf and hearing is facilitated by a sign language interpreter who translates English into American Sign Language (ASL) for the person who is deaf and ASL into English for the person who is hearing. For a listing of ASL interpreting service vendors in California, refer to the section entitled "Sign Language Interpreting" in this directory.

A person who is hard of hearing and not familiar with ASL, may need to use a captioning service which translates spoken words into printed English in a realtime format. This is known as Communication Access Realtime Translation (CART) and a listing of vendors can be found in the "Captioning Services" portion of this directory.

There are also dual typewriter devices which allow a person that is hearing and a person with a hearing loss the ability to communicate by typing back and forth. Two of the vendors for these typing devices (sComm and Interprettype) are listed in the "Assistive Technology" section of this directory.

When none of these services are available, writing back and forth with the individual is an option. Lipreading is probably the least effective manner of communication because many of the sounds in English are hidden and may also resemble other sounds. This increases the possibility of miscommunication.

COMMUNICATION OPTIONS FOR A CHILD WHO IS DEAF OR HARD OF HEARING

There are a variety of communication options available for a child who is deaf or hard of hearing, since every child is unique and different in their response to these techniques. Below is a brief description of these various communication modalities, as well as some resource listings.

Oral Method

The Oral Method of communication utilizes speech-reading (lip-reading) and the maximal use of a child's residual hearing for the development and production of speech. The premise behind this method is that a child who is deaf or hard of hearing will then be able to communicate more effectively with hearing individuals.

Cued Speech Method

Cued Speech facilitates lip-reading by having the speaker simultaneously use hand gestures while speaking to help the listener visually distinguish between similar looking sounds on the speaker's lips.

Manual Communication Methods

Manual methods of communication utilize a child's ability to communicate through visual stimuli such as fingerspelling and sign languages.

- American Sign Language (ASL) is composed of positions and gestures made with the hands, body and facial expressions to convey abstract concepts as with any spoken language. Being its own language, ASL has a distinct grammatical structure which is quite dissimilar to English.
- Manual English uses many of the traditional ASL signs, while maintaining the English word order and grammar so as to develop a child's ability to read and write English. Examples of this system are: Seeing Essential English (SEE I), Signing Exact English (SEE II) and Signed English.
- Fingerspelling augments most sign language systems by using handshapes to code the letters of the alphabet as well as numbers. Words (i.e., proper names, places, etc.) are then spelled out by using these individual letter codes.

Total Communication (TC) Method

The philosophical basis for Total Communication (TC) is for a child who is deaf or hard of hearing to use any and all communication methods necessary to facilitate language acquisition. This system, which typically uses signs in English word order, may include: speech, fingerspelling, manual signs, gestures, speechreading, cued speech and augmentation of residual hearing. Basically, this mode of communication may utilize any combination of the communication options listed above.

AMERICAN SIGN LANGUAGE (ASL)

American Sign Language (ASL) is a manual language capable of conveying abstract concepts as with any spoken language. The grammatical structure of ASL is distinct and very different from that of English. Since some hearing parents of deaf or hard of hearing children decide to introduce sign language to their children, these parents may choose to learn sign language along with their children. As with any language, repetition and practice is essential for mastery of that language. Listed below are a number of free websites which include ASL dictionaries and fingerspelling practice.

THE DEAF AND DISABLED TELECOMMUNICATIONS PROGRAM (DDTP)

The technological advances of today have allowed the deaf and hard of hearing populations the ability to communicate via the telephone and internet in ways that were unavailable in the past. The Deaf and Disabled Telecommunications Program (DDTP), a part of the California Public Utilities Commission, administers two programs: the California Relay Service (CRS) and the California Telephone Access Program (CTAP). The purpose of these programs is to provide access to basic telephone service for Californians who have difficulty using the telephone.

California Relay Service (CRS)

CRS provides specially-trained operators that relay telephone conversations back and forth between people who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech-disabled and all those they wish to communicate with by telephone. There are numerous types of relay services provided for people with differing kinds of communication difficulties.

One of the biggest challenges for a person making a relay call is that the party that they are calling may hang up because he/she is unfamiliar with this service. Should a caller state, "Hello, this is Mr. X. speaking to you through a Sign Language Interpreter" or "This is Mr. X. talking to you through a video relay service" be aware that this person will be using the CRS and the operator will guide you through the appropriate protocol for these conversations. If a business has been contacted and the conversation takes longer than anticipated and the call must be ended, it is courteous to provide the caller with a direct number, so he/she may conclude the call at a later time.

A step by step guide for making various types of relay calls can be found at: http://ddtp.cpuc.ca.gov/Relay/How_to_Make_a_Relay_Call.asp. An explanation of each type of service provided by the CRS is listed below.

Video Relay Service (VRS) makes use of a web cam and the Internet, or a videophone and high speed Internet access. A Relay Operator/Interpreter, fluent in sign language, can see and be seen by the calling party. VRS is often preferred by people who wish to use sign language and/or lipread the relay operator.

Teletypewriter (TTY) Relay Service utilizes a TTY which is a small telecommunications device with a keyboard for typing and a screen for reading conversations. A TTY is often used by people who are deaf, hard of hearing, or speech-disabled.

Voice Carry Over (VCO) Relay Service is for people who are deaf or hard of hearing but who wish to speak through the telephone receiver directly to and be heard by the other party. The relay operator types what is said by the other party and the VCO user reads it on his or her TTY.

Hearing Carry Over (HCO) Relay Service is for people who can hear but who have difficulty speaking clearly but wish to hear the other party directly. The HCO user types on a TTY what he or she wishes to say and this is spoken by the relay operator to the other party.

Speech To Speech (STS) Relay Service makes it possible for people who can hear but who have a speech disability to carry on a telephone conversation with anyone they might wish to communicate. Some STS users communicate with a voice synthesizer or voice enhancer device. As needed, a specially trained STS Relay Operator re-voices what is being said by the STS user. The STS user hears the other party's voice directly.

Internet (IP) Relay Service is a web-based relay service. Text-users who are deaf, hard of hearing, or speech disabled can initiate a relay call by connecting with an Internet Relay Operator who, in turn, dials the phone number of the other party to be called.

There are three ways to dial a CRS operator. Should you be kept on hold for a lengthy period of time when dialing using the first option, try using the second or third option to connect with a CRS operator.

1. Dial the DDTP dedicated toll-free numbers

• TTY:

English: (800) 735-2929

Spanish: (800) 855-3000

• Voice- including Voice Carryover (VCO) and Hearing Carryover (HCO):

2. Dial 711 from any telephone

OR

3. Dial the CRS providers' number

DEAF ACCESS PROGRAM

The Deaf Access Program (DAP) was created in 1980 to ensure that California's public programs are adapted to meet the communication needs of deaf and hard of hearing children, adults, and families so they may receive the public benefits and services to which they are entitled and achieve economic independence to fully participate in mainstream society.

SERVICES PROVIDED

Communication Services: Help in obtaining qualified sign language interpreters, including 24-hour, seven-days-a-week interpreting for emergency medical, civil or legal situations; translation of documents for deaf clients with low language skills; information about assistive technology, signaling devices, hearing and signal dogs; access to public videophones.

Counseling: Individual and family counseling that is responsive to the communication needs of deaf and hard of hearing clients; peer counseling, which includes crisis intervention and referral, teaching coping skills, and mentoring.

Advocacy Services: Help in gaining equal access to employment, education and services, both public and private; workshops and training about civil, employment and consumer rights.

Independent Living Skills Instruction: Help in acquiring the skills that clients need to live more independently in their daily lives, and to be less dependent on government programs; help understanding and accessing resources and services available.

Job Development and Placement: Employment related services such as career counseling, referral to job training programs, and workshops on obtaining and retaining employment; Technical assistance to employers on accommodating deaf and hard of hearing employees.

Information and Referral: Respond to inquiries regarding deafness, hearing loss and related topics; direct clients to appropriate private and public agencies that can help them with their specific needs.

Community Education: Increase public awareness and understanding of the needs of deaf and hard of hearing individuals; alert potential clients to the myriad of services available; conduct outreach to draw clients out of isolation.

PROGRAM OVERSIGHT

The California Department of Social Services' Office of Deaf Access is responsible for administering and monitoring the DAP Program.

Highlights of the DAP PROGRAM

- Services are available statewide via eight regional non-profit organizations.
- $5.2 million in services are paid annually.
- The DAP has no eligibility requirements other than a demonstrated need for services.
- The DAP is a program “of, by and for” deaf and hard of hearing people.

DEAF-BLIND RESOURCES

The term deaf-blindness refers to any combination of vision and hearing loss, not necessarily complete deafness and complete blindness. Most individuals who are deaf-blind have some useful vision and/or hearing, while others may have no residual sight or hearing. There is a wide range of cognitive and developmental ability among individuals who are deaf-blind. Because deaf-blindness is a combination of vision and hearing losses, no two individuals who are deaf-blind have the same needs.

Children who are deaf-blind need early intervention to increase their interest and understanding of the world around them. The information that most children acquire naturally must be introduced deliberately and systematically to children who are deaf-blind.

Many individuals who are deaf-blind need to utilize the services of a Support Service Provider (SSP). A SSP is a sighted person (deaf, hard of hearing or hearing) that works with a person who is deaf-blind. SSPs provide: sighted guiding, environmental, visual and auditory descriptions, facilitate communications with others, transportation and other assistive services.

EDUCATION

EDUCATION FOR CHILDREN WITH HEARING LOSS

When parents first learn that their child has a disability, they are often faced with the challenge of finding the appropriate educational setting which is best suited for the growth and development of their child. It is important to become familiar with the basic rules (set forth through the U.S. Department of Education) which provide educational guidelines for children with disabilities.

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is a federal legislation that requires eligible students with disabilities to have equal access to a free and appropriate education. A parent, teacher, administrator, doctor, or a community agency may refer a child who is suspected of having a disability for assessment. Once it is determined (via proper assessment tools) that a child has a disability, an Individualized Education Program (IEP) is set up and tailored for that child. The IEP mandates that a team of knowledgeable persons (teacher(s), parent(s), child if appropriate, local education agency (LEA), and other individuals at the parent's or LEA's discretion) create a specific and comprehensive special educational program unique to that child. IEPs are designed to monitor the student's strengths via measurable goals with specified assessment tools, to delineate supplemental supports and services, to define the parent's and student's level of involvement, and to create transition plans (grade to grade, school to school, school to adult life). Special education services in California are provided for all children with disabilities birth to twenty-two years of age.

To find further information on deaf, hard of hearing, deaf-blind and additional special education programs in your local area, you may contact your local county office of education. The county offices can direct you to the programs in your area, as well as provide you with information and guidance on the IEP process listed above. A list of these county offices can be found in the "Educational Resources for Children" section of this directory.

EARLY CHILDHOOD INTERVENTION AND EDUCATION

A successful early childhood intervention program for a child who is deaf or hard of hearing involves a team of professionals with the parents acting as the “team managers.” It is imperative for the parents to be actively involved in the process as soon as their child’s hearing loss is diagnosed, as they need to incorporate all learning and language strategies into the home environment. The team may include a health professional (e.g., a family doctor, a pediatrician, an audiologist or an ear, nose and throat doctor), a service coordinator, a speech and language pathologist, and a teacher of the deaf or hard of hearing. A good starting point is to contact the California Department of Developmental Services. They have a statewide program called Early Start, which, in conjunction with local education agencies, will develop a complete plan for the child and the family.

Some programs utilize the manual communication method which may include the teaching of American Sign Language (ASL) or manual English (a method which uses many of the ASL signs while maintaining English word order) as a means of developing both fluency in sign language and English. Other programs (referred to as the oral method) prefer not to use manual communication, but to concentrate more on speech, language and auditory building skills to facilitate communication with hearing individuals. Two programs in California, the Blind Children’s Learning Center and the California School for the Blind, provide early childhood education for children who are deaf-blind, blind or visually impaired.

Infants and toddlers from birth to 36 months may be eligible for early intervention services if it is determined that they have a hearing loss. Evaluation services are available to all children who are eligible and anyone may make a referral. A parent may contact a local regional center or school district for evaluation and early intervention services and a service coordinator will be assigned to the family to develop an Individualized Family Service Plan which will include a team of support staff. Local education agencies are primarily responsible for provision of services and all services are at no charge to the families.

The California Department of Health Services' (DHS) Children's Medical Services (CMS) Branch has implemented a statewide comprehensive Newborn Hearing Screening Program (NHSP). The incidence of permanent significant hearing loss is approximately two to four per every 1000 infants. It is the most common congenital condition for which there is a screening program. It is estimated that the NHSP will identify 1,200 infants with hearing loss each year. Families of infants delivered in DHS approved hospitals will be offered the opportunity to have their baby's' hearing screened. Infants who do not pass the screening in the hospital will be referred to DHS approved Hearing Coordination Centers for follow up for additional services.

SCHOOLS FOR CHILDREN WITH HEARING LOSS (GRADES K-12)

There are a variety of communication options available in school settings for a child with a hearing loss and every child is unique and different in their response to these techniques. Regardless of the type of communication method that is used, it is essential that intervention begin at an early age and that an appropriate Individualized Education Program be in place to facilitate optimal learning. To locate a school that has educational programs for children who are deaf and hard of hearing, contact the California Department of Education's County Office of Education in which the child resides. A list of these county offices can be found in the "Educational Resources for Children" section of this directory. Below is a brief description of communication modalities used in the classroom, as well as, a listing of some of the schools that use these various communication methods.

Oral Method

The Oral Method of communication utilizes speechreading (lipreading) and the maximal use of a child's residual hearing for the development and production of speech. The premise behind this method is that a child with a hearing loss will then be able to communicate more effectively with hearing individuals.

Cued Speech Method

Cued Speech facilitates lip-reading by having the speaker simultaneously use hand gestures while speaking to help the listener visually distinguish between similar looking sounds on the speaker's lips.

Manual Communication Methods

Manual methods of communication utilize a child's ability to communicate through visual stimuli such as fingerspelling and sign languages.

Total Communication (TC) Method

The philosophical basis for Total Communication (TC) is for a child with a hearing loss to use any and all communication methods necessary to facilitate language acquisition.

This system, which typically uses signs in English word order, may include: speech, fingerspelling, manual signs, gestures, speech-reading, cued speech, and augmentation of residual hearing. Basically, this mode of communication may utilize any combination of the communication options listed above.

They open their playgroups on select Fridays to all parents with Deaf and Hard of Hearing children under the age of 3 in Northern California.

The California School for the Deaf is a free state-funded, Common Core standards based, fully accredited and internationally acclaimed public school that provides a comprehensive academic education to over 400 students from ages 3-21. Their ASL—English Bilingual approach uses both English and American Sign Language through the ready use of children’s eyes and hands. This allows children to immediately receive language and express themselves naturally through signing and writing.

Communication services such as spoken English/articulation, auditory training, speech reading and communication strategies are also available. The State credentialed teachers who specialize in working with Deaf and Hard of Hearing children follow all the state standards and assessments to foster student mastery in both English and American Sign Language and prepare them for college. The school’s mission for over 150 years is to have Deaf and Hard of Hearing children be socially confident and self-actualized participants in contemporary society. Students in grades K-12 living more than an hour away can stay at the school during the week. Parent education classes and workshops including family sign language classes are also provided to all families, including those not enrolled at CSD.

The Limited Examination and Appointment Program (LEAP) is an alternative examination and appointment process for the recruiting and hiring of people with disabilities into state service. The CalHR has some LEAP examinations listed on their website. In addition to these listings, each state department also has their own LEAP examination listings, so it is best to look up this information at the department in which you seek employment. The DOR certifies eligibility on a LEAP referral list by verifying that requirements of a person with disability are met. The person can then begin to apply for LEAP class examinations during open testing periods. LEAP examinations are given on-line via the internet or by mail.

The LEAP examination is a two-part process. In part I, the Readiness Evaluation, education, experience, and personal qualifications are evaluated in regards to readiness for work. If successful on the application to the Readiness Evaluation, an individual will remain on a list for 24 months and may begin applying to and interviewing with state departments that offer eligible LEAP classification. Once hired, the Job Examination Period or part II of the LEAP process begins. Upon successful completion of a temporary two to four month on-the-job performance evaluation period, the person is hired and the standard probationary period for that position will then commence. As a LEAP candidate, an individual receives the same salary as any employee in that regular civil service class.

The Department of Rehabilitation (DOR) assists Californians with hearing loss in obtaining and retaining employment. In addition to this employment service, the DOR assists people so that they can maximize their ability to live independently in their communities. They also provide Americans with Disabilities Act technical assistance and training in addition to funding Independent Living Centers, which offer information and referral services to assist individuals with disabilities so they may live active, independent lives.

Although all DOR offices assist all consumers, some of the offices have counselors for the deaf and hard of hearing. A "(D/H)" included in an address designates it as a "home" office of rehabilitation counselors for the deaf and hard of hearing (RCDs). RCDs provide a wide range of vocational rehabilitation services to persons who are deaf, hard of hearing, or late deafened. The RCDs are qualified as being proficient in American Sign Language (ASL) so as to ensure direct communication access with consumers who use ASL as their primary mode of communication. For persons that have a visual impairment in addition to a hearing loss, there are rehabilitation counselors for the blind at some of these offices and these will be denoted with a (B).

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

SOCIAL SECURITY

Eligibility for Social Security is authorized by Title II of the Social Security Act. The official name is Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI). The amount of monthly income you may obtain from Social Security is determined by how much you have contributed to Social Security. It is not based on your financial need, so if you have worked for a certain number of quarters and paid into the Social Security fund, you will be able to collect payments based on your contributions. The Social Security Administration (SSA) has a toll-free number that operates from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Please have your social security number ready when you call. The contact information for SSA is listed below.

(800) 772-1213 (Voice)

(800) 325-0778 (TTY)

Website: www.ssa.gov

There is a SSA website for frequently asked questions which is located at:
ssa-custhelp.ssa.gov/app/answers/list

If you still need additional help, you may write to the Office of Public Inquiries:

Social Security Administration

Office of Public Inquiries

Windsor Park Building
6401 Security Boulevard
Baltimore, MD 21235

Contact the Social Security office nearest your residence to get more information about the various Social Security programs. To locate the office nearest your residence, you can access the online Social Security Office Locator at:
secure.ssa.gov/apps6z/FOLO/fo001.jsp.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY INSURANCE

Eligibility for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) is also based on your earnings, those of your spouse or your parents. If you have worked for a certain length of time and have a hearing loss, you may be eligible for SSDI. The SSA provides several pamphlets and brochures about its programs, so you may want to contact the Social Security office nearest you to request these materials. A general overview of SSDI, as well as Supplemental Security Income (SSI) can be found at:
www.socialsecurity.gov/redbook/.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

Eligibility for Supplemental Security Income (SSI), authorized by Title XVI of the Social Security Act, is based on financial need. The SSI program makes cash assistance payments to aged, blind, and disabled individuals (including children under age 18) who have limited income and resources. The amount that you may receive will depend on your income and resources. You may apply in person or over the telephone and you should inquire at the Social Security office nearest you. Telephone numbers for Social Security offices are listed under United States Government, Department of Health and Human Services, in your telephone directory. A general overview of SSI qualifications can be found at: www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/11000.html#part1

SSI and SSDI programs share many similar concepts and terms, but there are also several, very important differences in the rules affecting eligibility and benefit payments. Individuals may apply to both programs and some people are eligible for benefits under both SSI and SSDI. The term “concurrent” is used when individuals are eligible for benefits under both programs. Examples of concurrent benefits can be found at: www.socialsecurity.gov/redbook/eng/supportsexample.htm.

The Assistance Dog Special Allowance (ADSA) program provides a monthly payment to eligible persons who use a guide, signal or service dog to help them with needs related to their physical disabilities. The allowance is to help pay the cost of food, grooming and health care for the dog.

To be eligible for the ADSA program, an individual must meet all four of the following criteria:

1. Live in California.
2. Be blind, deaf, hard of hearing or disabled.
3. Use the services of a guide, signal or service dog.
4. Receive benefits from one or more of the following programs:

- Supplemental Security Income (SSI)
- State Supplementary Payment (SSP)
- In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS)
- Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) (SSDI recipients must also meet federal poverty guidelines)
- Cash Assistance Program for Immigrants (CAPI)

DISABILITY BENEFITS 101

Website: <http://ca.db101.org/>

Disability Benefits 101 (DB101) is a benefit planning website designed to help workers, job seekers, and service providers understand the connections between work and benefits for persons with disabilities. The site presents rules for health coverage, benefits and employment programs in an easy-to-use format that assists persons with disabilities.

Since the disability experience is unique for each person, the three Benefit Planner Calculators (explained below) and the PASS program were created to assess the connection and interaction between programs and changing life situations.

- Benefits and Work Calculator: If a person is currently on disability benefits, this illustrates the benefit changes should he or she take a job.
- School and Work Calculator: Many benefits program rules change upon a person's 18th birthday; this will help an individual navigate these changes.
- Medi-Cal for the Working Disabled Calculator: Determines an employed individual's eligibility for the Medi-Cal 250% California Working Disabled Program. This is a benefit in addition to those that a person may already be receiving.
- PASS Program: Should someone wish to set aside money to subsidize a career goal, the Supplemental Security Income's (SSI's) Plan for Achieving Self Support (PASS) can assist in saving money toward this goal while the SSI benefits help pay for basics such as food and shelter.

DISABLED PARKING PLACARD

The Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) will issue a disabled parking placard to a deaf-blind person. This placard is transferable from vehicle to vehicle whenever the person with sight loss is a passenger. It is usable in specially marked disabled parking spaces and will enable the driver to park free at parking meters. Permanent parking placards for permanent disabilities are valid for two years and there is a substantial penalty for misuse. There is no fee for a permanent parking placard, its replacement, or for a travel placard.

The U.S. Postal Service allows visually impaired persons (this applies to deaf-blind individuals) to send and receive books, recorded material, certain types of equipment and other mail free-of-charge if they are registered at the local post office. In the right top corner of the envelope, you will need to place the words "FREE MATTER FOR THE BLIND OR HANDICAPPED". You may send for a copy of the pamphlet, "Mailing Free Matter for Blind and Visually Handicapped Persons" from the Office of the Consumer Advocate.

TAX BENEFITS

People who have both visual and hearing impairments, who are certified as legally blind are eligible for a special deduction on their income taxes in addition to the standard deductions they may be entitled to. They will need a statement from their doctor affirming visual impairment and it must be attached to their tax returns. Persons with a hearing loss may be able to deduct cost and repair of special telephone equipment and/or the persons with hearing loss. The amount of these fixed deductions depends on filing status and the amount may vary from year to year. There may also be additional deductions based on a visual impairment. To view possible deductions, consult the Internal Revenue Service's "Tax Highlights for Persons with Disabilities" (Publication 907) at: www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p907.pdf.

GUIDELINES WHEN COMMUNICATING WITH A PERSON WHO IS DEAF OR HARD OF HEARING

- It is appropriate to use the terms deaf or hard of hearing person when referring to a person with a hearing loss.
- Hard of hearing, and deaf individuals do not communicate in the same ways. Deaf people tend to utilize their visual skills, hard of hearing people tend to utilize their listening and speaking skills.
- To get the attention of a person with a hearing loss, call his/her name. If there is no response, you can lightly touch him/her on the arm or shoulder, or wave your hand in his/her field of vision an appropriate distance from his/her face.
- Always look directly at a person who has a hearing loss. Use eye to eye contact. Watch the individual's eyes to ensure understanding - do not depend on affirmative head nodding only.
- Make sure that your mouth can be seen.
- Use facial expressions and body language to communicate the emotion of a message, such as displeasure or approval.
- If you are asked to repeat yourself several times, try rephrasing your sentence.
- Speak directly to the deaf or hard of hearing person at a moderate pace while using sign language.
- Be aware of the environment. Large, crowded rooms and hallways can be very difficult for persons with hearing loss. Bright sunlight and shadows also present barriers.
- When using an interpreter:
 - Always address your comments directly to the deaf person, never to the interpreter.
 - Always face the individual, and not the interpreter.

HEARING AIDS AND COCHLEAR IMPLANTS

Hearing aids and cochlear implants work in slightly different manners to facilitate sound transmission for individuals with hearing loss. Generally speaking, hearing aids work much like "public address" systems. Each hearing aid, which is run by batteries, contains a microphone (picks up sound around you), an amplifier (makes the sound louder), and a receiver (delivers the sound to your ear). There are three basic types of hearing aids. Custom In-the-Ear Hearing Aids (ITE) have small components that fit in the bowl of the ear which are intended for mild to moderate hearing loss. Behind-the-Ear Hearing Aids (BTE) sit behind the ear and are coupled to an ear mold which fits into the ear. These aids have the flexibility to fit every type of hearing loss. Pocket (Body) Hearing Aids are carried in a pocket or worn on the body. This type of aid is intended for severe to profound hearing losses.

Cochlear implants are surgically implanted devices that send sound information via electrical stimulation directly to the auditory nerve, bypassing the damaged, missing or non-functioning sensory receptors (hair cells) located within the inner ear. These are unlike hearing aids which simply amplify sounds and send the signals to these sensory receptors. In order to have access to environmental sounds and speech information, a person with a cochlear implant must wear an external sound processor (either a body-worn, pager-sized model or a behind-the-ear model) and a microphone. Sound is picked up at the level of the microphone and sent to the sound processor where the sound signals are converted into digital signals. These digitized signals are then delivered to an internal electrode array that was surgically placed in the inner ear. Contacts on this electrode array electrically stimulate hearing nerve fibers which, in turn, carry the signals to the brain where they are "heard."

Cochlear implants have received Food and Drug Administration approval for use in adults with severe or profound hearing loss in both ears who receive little or no benefit from the use of hearing aids. They are also approved for children 12 months of age or older who have profound hearing loss in both ears, and who receive little or no benefit from hearing aids. The type of amplification device that is best for an individual must be determined by a thorough examination by an audiologist.

HEARING AIDS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Public schools are a possible source for the provision of hearing aids for children. Many times it is difficult to get schools to provide hearing aids for use during school hours. It is even more difficult to acquire these hearing aids for use at home in conjunction with a child's academic Individualized Education Program (IEP). The following information may be helpful regarding hearing aids: website listings for documents and legislation listed below will follow at the end of this section.

The Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) has written guidance letters clarifying for schools that “Hearing Aids are Assistive Technology” and that “Presumptively Denying Assistive Technology” is unacceptable. The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) strengthens academic expectations and accountability for the nation's 5.8 million children with disabilities and bridges the gap that has existed between what children with disabilities learn and what is acquired in regular curriculum. The final regulations of IDEA read, "On a case-by-case basis, the use of school-purchased assistive technology devices in a child's home or in other settings is required if the child's IEP team determines that the child needs access to those devices in order to receive FAPE..." (FAPE is an acronym for “Free and Appropriate Public Education”).

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 protects the rights of individuals with disabilities in programs and activities that receive federal funds. The U.S. Department of Education (ED) enforces Section 504 in programs and activities that receive funds from ED and these include public school districts. This regulation requires a school district to provide a FAPE to each qualified person with a disability who is in the school district's jurisdiction, regardless of the nature or severity of the person's disability.

MEDICAL RESOURCES

MEDI-CAL AND MEDICARE

Many California residents who have a hearing loss may be eligible for two medical, public assistance programs. One is Medi-Cal, which is California's name for the federal Medicaid program. The other is Medicare, a federal program designed to help with the cost of medical and hospital care for elderly and disabled persons.

MEDI-CAL

The Medi-Cal program is a state and federally funded program for low income people that is administered by each county in California. To learn more about the Medi-Cal program and to find out about eligibility requirements for these services, contact your local county welfare or social services office. A listing of these offices may also be found at the following website: www.dhcs.ca.gov/services/medi-cal/Pages/CountyOffices2.aspx.

Medi-Cal pays for medically necessary treatment services, medicines, medical supplies, and durable medical equipment, such as hearing aids, canes, crutches, walkers, and wheelchairs, etc. A person is automatically eligible for Medi-Cal if he/she is receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS). Even if someone is not receiving benefits from these programs, he/she may still be eligible if he/she has low income and limited resources.

Medi-Cal provides a number of services to people with limited resources including, but not limited to:

- Physician services
- Inpatient hospital care
- Outpatient hospital care
- Laboratory and X-ray services
- Skilled nursing facility services
- Home health services
- Rural health clinic services
- Pharmacy services (Medications)
- Medical transportation
- Equipment such as wheelchairs, hearing aids, and cochlear implants
- Vision services
- Long term care
- Physical therapy
- Occupational therapy
- Speech therapy
- Audiology

MEDICARE

Medicare is a federal health insurance program for aged and disabled persons. If you have questions about Medicare or want to apply for benefits, call Social Security at the numbers listed below and make sure to have your social security number ready when you call:

(800) 633-4227 (Voice)

Website for Medicare: www.medicare.gov

Website for Medicare Benefits: www.ssa.gov/pgm/links_medicare.htm

Website for Social Security Office Locator: secure.ssa.gov/apps6z/FOLO/fo001.jsp

For general Medicare information, ordering Medicare booklets, and information about health plans, Medicare may be contacted 24 hours a day, 7 days a week at:

(800) 633-4227 (Voice)

(877) 486-2048 (TTY)

Entitlement to Medicare services, unlike Medi-Cal, is not based on an individual's financial status. Rather, it is a health insurance program funded through employer and employee payroll taxes. To qualify for Medicare, an individual must be:

- Receiving Social Security benefits;
- A retired employee of the federal government; or
- Receiving Railroad Retirement benefits.

For people who are not disabled, eligibility for Medicare begins at age 65, even if they opted to begin receiving Social Security Retirement benefits at age 62. Persons under the age of 65, who are disabled, may be eligible for Medicare if they have received Social Security or Railroad Retirement Disability benefits for at least 24 months. The disabled adult child of a Medicare recipient, or deceased Medicare recipient, is also eligible to receive Medicare benefits.

Medicare Administration

The Medicare program is administered locally by private insurance companies who are called "carriers." The Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), a federal agency within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, contracts with private insurance companies in each area of the country to process claims for benefits from people who are enrolled in Medicare. You apply for Medicare at your local Social Security office and questions concerning benefits should be directed there as well.

Locate the Social Security office nearest your residence at

SIGN LANGUAGE INTERPRETING

Qualified interpreters are skilled professionals who adhere to a strict code of ethics and facilitate communication between two parties that do not share the same language. American Sign Language (ASL) has a linguistic structure quite different from English, so a skilled interpreter must be able to interpret effectively, accurately, and impartially both expressively (voice-to-sign) and receptively (sign-to-voice) in any given communication situation.

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and Title II and Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), as well as other state and federal laws require the provision of auxiliary aids and services (i.e., interpreting services) necessary to ensure effective communication with deaf, hard of hearing or deaf-blind individuals. An interpreter should be certified by either the Registry of the Interpreters for the Deaf (RID), the National Association of the Deaf (NAD) or the American Consortium of Certified Interpreters (ACCI).

Each individual that requires interpreting services is unique with differing communication needs. Interpreters are matched to clients based on these needs, certification level, experience and other factors. Specialized credentials are available for educational and legal settings. There are numerous types of interpreting situations such as.

- ASL/English Interpreter (translation between ASL and spoken English)
- Transliterater (translation between English-based sign language and spoken English)
- Oral Interpreter (words are silently mouthed and gestures are used to convey spoken English)
- Tactile Interpreter (translation for deaf-blind individuals where the client places his/her hands on the interpreter's so as to feel the formation of signs)
- Low Vision Interpreter (for individuals with vision impairments that can only read signs at close range)
- Deaf Interpreter (using a deaf person as an intermediary between a hearing person and another deaf, deaf-blind or hard of hearing person)
- Trilingual Interpreter (translating from English to ASL to Spanish - or some other language)
- Video Interpreter (providing services from a remote location, through video conferencing technology)

ETIQUETTE WHEN USING A SIGN LANGUAGE INTERPRETER

- Look at the person when signing/speaking to them, not at the interpreter.
- Look at the person who is signing/speaking to you, even though this may feel awkward since the message is coming through an interpreter.
- Address the person directly:
Appropriate communication: "Where were you born?"
Inappropriate communication: "Ask him where he was born."
- When possible, please share any notes, outlines, or handouts with the interpreter in advance, or at the very least, provide a copy of these items to the interpreter during the assignment.
- If, during the assignment, you plan to turn down the lights, remember to leave enough lighting on the interpreter.
- The interpreter may ask for specific seating/positioning to facilitate the best viewing angles for himself/herself and for the client.
- Sign/speak in your normal tone of voice at a moderate pace. The interpreter will tell you if you need to pause, slow down or repeat the information.
- People sometimes read aloud in a different manner than they typically sign or speak. When reading extensively from written materials, consider supplying a copy to the audience and the interpreter. Be aware of the pace of your speech, especially when reading aloud.
- Be aware that the interpreter should interpret everything said, so avoid discussing subjects you don't wish the deaf/hard of hearing person to know.
- When separated from the person you are communicating with, avoid giving messages to the interpreter to relay at a later time to the individual.
- Relax. If you are unsure of the appropriate way to proceed in a particular situation, just ask.

INDEPENDENT LIVING CENTER OF KERN COUNTY (ILCKC)

American Sign Language Interpreting Services program

American Sign Language Interpreting Services is a new part of ILCKC. They provide an on-site interpreter with a registry of interpreters to call when others are needed to schedule with the hope that having this service will provide more growth for ILCKC and jobs for interpreters in the greater Bakersfield, Kern County area, an area that has a need for qualified interpreters.

RID is a national membership organization representing the professionals who facilitate communication between people who are deaf or hard of hearing and people who can hear. Interpreters serve as professional communicators in a vast array of settings such as: churches, schools, courtrooms, hospitals and theaters, as well as on political grandstands and television. RID has a tri-fold approach to the standards it maintains for membership: First RID strives to maintain strict adherence to a nationally recognized industry standard for testing. They also have a certified maintenance program for interpreters so that they may continue their skill development. Thirdly, RID has an ethical practices system in conjunction with the National Association of the Deaf (NAD).
