^{1/} Data Source: FFY 2009 RADEP TANF Work Participation database as of 12/13/2010. Two-Parent cases are included in All Family counts.

^{2/} A work-eligible individual is an adult (or minor child head of household) receiving assistance under TANF or a Separate State Program or a non-recipient parent living with a child receiving such assistance, unless the parent is: 1) a minor parent and not the head-of-household; 2) a non-citizen who is ineligible to receive assistance due to his or her immigration status; or 3) at state option on a case-by-case basis, a recipient of supplemental security income (SSI) benefits or aid to the aged, blind, and/or disabled. The term also excludes: 1) a parent providing care for a disabled family member living in the home provided there is medical documentation to support the need for the parent to remain in the home to care for the disabled family member; and 2) at state option on a case-by-case basis, a parent who is a recipient of Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits; and 3) an individual in a family receiving MOE-funded assistance under an approved tribal TANF program, unless the state includes the tribal TANF family in calculating work participation rates as permitted under 45CFR261.25.

^{1/} Data Source: FFY 2009 RADEP TANF Work Participation database as of 12/13/2010. Two-Parent cases are included in All Family counts.^{2/} Child-only cases are not included in WPR calculations because there are no work-eligible individuals in the case. Pursuant to language in the Deficit Reduction Act, beginning in FFY 2007, parents (including those sanctioned or timed-out) living with an aided child are considered work-eligible and are no longer considered child-only cases for TANF work participation purposes.^{3/} The federal data reporting rules allow states to disregard cases with work-eligible individuals under certain circumstances; when a single custodial parent with a child under age 1 year does not participate (zero hours), and when all work-eligible individuals in a case with a currently sanctioned individual has not been sanctioned for more than 3 months in a 12-month period.

^{2/} All Family work participation rules and requirements were used in the determination of "meeting" or "not meeting" the Federal Work Participation Requirements. Hourly requirements: Single Custodial Parent case with a child under 6--20 hours; other cases without a child under 6--30 hours. In addition, for purposes of the All Family work participation rate, the participation of only one work-eligible individual is used to determine if the case meets the AF requirements to be counted in the numerator.

^{3/} Teen parents without a high school diploma satisfactorily attending secondary school or participating in 20 or more hours of education directly related to employment are also included in this category.

^{3/} Teen parents satisfactorily attending secondary school or participating in 20 or more hours of education directly related to employment are included in this category.

^{4/} Some cases in this category are meeting the federal requirement because they include at least one teen parent who: does not have a high school diploma; is not a single custodial parent; and is participating in secondary school or education directly related to employment.

^{5/} Cases with over 20 hours of participation that are not meeting the work participation requirements participate in non-core activities (i.e., education directly related to employment, job skills training directly related to employment and satisfactory school attendance) without sufficient core hours to apply toward the hourly participation requirement.

^{2/} Two parent work participation rules and requirements were used in the determination of "meeting" or "not meeting" the Federal Work Participation Requirements. Hourly requirements, combined for all parents in the case, are 35 hours or, for each teen parent, 20 hours in education directly related to employment or satisfactorily attending secondary school. In addition, for purposes of the All Family work participation rate, the participation of only one work-eligible individual is used to determine if the case meets the AF requirements to be counted in the numerator.

^{3/} Paid core activities include hours of paid employment and on the job training.

^{4/} Unpaid core activities include hours of work experience, job search, community service, vocational education, child care provision, and education directly related to employment or satisfactory high school attendance for teen parents.

^{5/} Non-core activities include hours of job skills training, education directly related to employment, and satisfactory attendance in secondary education.
