^{1/} Data Source: FFY 2010 RADEP TANF work participation database as of 10/17/2013. Two-Parent cases are included in All Family counts.^{2/} A work eligible individual is an adult (or minor child head of household) receiving assistance under TANF or a Separate State Program or a non-recipient parent living with a child receiving such assistance, unless the parent is: 1) a minor parent and not the head-of-household; 2) a non-citizen who is ineligible to receive assistance due to his or her immigration status; or 3) at state option on a case by case basis, a recipient of supplemental security income (SSI) benefits or aid to the aged, blind, and/or disabled. The term also excludes: 1) a parent providing care for a disabled family member living in the home provided there is medical documentation to support the need for the parent to remain in the home to care for the disabled family member; and 2) at state option on a case by case basis, a parent who is a recipient of Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits; and 3) an individual in a family receiving MOE-funded assistance under an approved tribal TANF program, unless the state includes the tribal TANF family in calculating work participation rates as permitted under 45CFR261.25.^{3/} Child only cases are not included in WPR calculations because there are no work eligible individuals in the case. Pursuant to language in the Deficit Reduction Act, beginning in FFY 2007, parents (including those sanctioned or timed out) living with an aided child are considered work eligible and are no longer considered child only cases for TANF work participation purposes.

^{3/} The federal data reporting rules allow states to disregard cases with work-eligible individuals under certain circumstances; when a single custodial parent with a child under age 1 year does not participate (zero hours), and when all work eligible individuals in a case with a currently sanctioned individual has not been sanctioned for more than 3 months in a 12-month period.
